Our coconuts are not harvested by monkeys nor any animal. They are harvested by our organic farmers who skillfully climb the tall coconut trees and perform two tasks; remove the dried coconut leaves and harvest the mature coconuts. It has been a lifelong cycle and a good agricultural practice to do both during scheduled harvest. It is economical for the farms and keep the coconuts productive. Hired farm labor gather the felled mature coconuts that scatter on the farm grounds and bring them to the designated collection area. No animal is involved in the harvesting and collection of our coconuts.
